Food Testing

Ensure Food Safety

Food business operators (FBOs) in India must test their products at least once every six months using FSSAI-notified or NABL-accredited laboratories to verify compliance with national safety standards. These tests check for nutritional labeling, microbiological pathogens, pesticide residues, heavy metals, and physical adulterants based on strict testing manuals.

FSSAI TESTING CONTENT AND PARAMETERS

Food testing encompasses several critical categories to ensure food is safe and correctly represented:

Nutritional Analysis

Profiling macros (carbohydrates, proteins, fats), energy values, vitamins, and minerals.

Contaminants and Toxins

Testing for heavy metals (Lead, Arsenic, Mercury), pesticide residues, veterinary drug residues, and aflatoxins.

Microbiological Safety

Detecting pathogens such as E. coli, Salmonella, Listeria, and Total Coliforms.

Adulteration Detection

Rapid, visual, and chemical tests to spot adulterants in milk, oils, spices, and grains.

Label Claims Validation

Ensuring that front-of-pack claims (e.g., "100% natural," "zero added sugar," or
